

Agloco View Bar Release Date Update

21st March 2007

From Official Agloco Blog

<http://blog.agloco.com>-----

In my last post, I mentioned a couple of ways you might get "noticed" to be the interesting site of the day at the end of this blog. I was pleased with the response I got, as I had a chance to check out a couple of blogs and posts I hadn't seen before.

One Member at AGLOCO Fiction wrote an interesting post describing a "pitch" one can use to recruit others to AGLOCO, and how he came up with it. The ending "pitch" is as follows:

Share in advertising revenue by being a potential customer, at no cost and without obligations.

When a company advertises its business, it is done through an advertising medium that serves as a middleman for the company and you.

Instead of the advertising medium collecting all of the money, Agloco pays you by the hour to run a piece of software at the bottom of your Internet browser, called the Viewbar.

The Viewbar collects data about your surfing behavior and displays related advertisements accordingly. If you make a purchase through a Viewbar advertisement, part of your expenditure will be returned to you as a discount.

Nothing is more important to Agloco than its members, because companies that advertise their businesses are in search of a large audience.

For this reason you are rewarded for signing up new members, with a 5 level network structure. It means that you will receive a percentage of the activity from people that you refer, and from people that they refer, and so on.

This is not a negative pyramid construction, because every member is directly funded by Agloco itself, and not by other members at the bottom. You are not obligated to refer anyone.

I'd be interested in hearing what you all think of this pitch, and if it works for you.

Another interesting and zippy comment came from a Member with "only" 20 referrals (which still places him well into "founder" status). He says:

Yeah my total network thus far is only 20, but let me tell you why I'm supporting this program over many others...

I'm sick of money making programs that only end up taking money from everyone. And I'm tired of joining an MLM because some top recruiter pretends he wants to make you money when in reality he wants to take yours. For once I don't have to be in somebody's face asking them for money because somebody was in mine. For once I can ask people to join a program because it's free and they truly will make money. So 20 for me is good. In time my 20 will grow because the majority of them won't leave. I'm taking it slow and steady because it's going to be a nice long ride with Agloco for me.

No financial cost, no obligation, and a lot of potential upside. This Member sees the value proposition AGLOCO is proposing to the "regular" Member.

Viewbar Update: The engineers have informed me that the Viewbar release is currently scheduled for between Monday April 2 and Monday, April 16 (between 12 and 26 days from now.) I will keep you posted as I continue to hear word from them on progress. As they continually remind me, this is all dependent on the results of QA testing.

Thanks again for all your recruiting efforts. AGLOCO continues to grow faster and faster, as every new week that passes brings a new record week for signups (and last week was no exception).

Brian Greenwald
AGLOCO Development Team

Interesting Site of the Day: <http://www.agglomerate.com/> - Nice site with frequent postings and interesting thoughts.