Agloco July Update

As Brian mentioned in his recorded interview last week (described below), he is spending more time on the revenue team and will be focusing more on getting money for the community and less on this blog. So to pick up the slack, various members of the AGLOCO Development Team will write some of the posts going forward. The blog will still be Brian's so if you have comments or questions about it, please continue to address them with him at bgreenwald@agloco.com.

Updating the website - We let this slide (too far) as we worked first on the Viewbar and then on revenue. We are currently moving and upgrading the site servers and this should be done in a week. After this is complete the tech team will change the website.

Another update email to Members &ndash; This is ready to go out and should also be done when the new servers are finished.

Media &ndash; As some Members have noted, Brian recently gave a recorded interview. In it, he talked about the AGLOCO Vision and he answered some questions about the company's current progress and trajectory. Click here to listen to the interview. Also, the French newspaper "Le Monde" wrote about us, and you can read the article by clicking here.

Windows 98 &ndash; We are investigating some quick workarounds for Viewbar compatibility with older versions of Windows. If they work we will report this to all Members.

Thanks for your continued efforts for AGLOCO.
